NEW DEAL 'HOSTILE' CHARGES DR. TOWNSEND

Hospital Flayed By Mrs. Simpson

JURY DECIDES SUSPECT IS SANE HERE

Wife of Museum Chief Attacks Conditions For Patients

Climaxed yesterday by a bitter attack on the Orange county hospital and Orange county authorities for their treatment of her, Mrs. Lydia P. Simpson's three-day court battle to establish her sanity ended in victory for her last night.

A superior court jury of six men and six women, after four hours' deliberation, found the wife of the New York Museum of Natural History's curator sane, and she was released from the county hospital, where she has been held for the past two weeks under observation.

Flays Hospital
In a plea to the jury, Mrs. Simpson adjured them: "I would like to suggest to the members of this honorable jury, if I may, that if they love anyone, never to send them to the Orange county hospital!"

Mrs. Simpson charged that conditions at the hospital could be improved on examination that would astound the public. Among other charges she made was one that male patients in the psychopathic wards were confined in close proximity to women, and that some even have keys to the women's wards in their possessions.

Calls Room a Cell
"One male patient, Snyder," she said, "has a key to women's cells, and can enter their rooms at any time. I have no sexual complex, but I think that condition is too awful to exist in any hospital." She repeatedly referred to her ward room as a cell, and to the inefficiency of the hospital staff. She roundly scored Dr. John Hall, who testified that she was insane, (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Bandit Shot with His Own Gun

LOS ANGELES, May 19. (P)—Police questioned a seriously wounded man today on the theory he was the robber whom a fast-thinking market clerk knocked down and shot with his own pistol last night.

Jack Greenwall, with bullet wounds in his shoulder and head, was taken into custody and held after the robbery, when he called at a physician's home for treatment.

Dozens of customers in the market were thrown into panic when the holdup occurred. Daniel Keltz, clerk, turned to face a man with a pistol pointed at his body and floored the robber with a blow. As Keltz fired twice at him with his original pistol, the wounded man fled.

'Last' Session of M. E. Church Ends

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 19. (P)—An historic 19-day session of the 32nd quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church—perhaps the last—ended at noon today. The delegates closed a meeting featured by approval of a union with two other branches of Methodism which would form the largest single Protestant body in the world.

SUPREME COURT ERRS, TOO

Justice Jumbles His Verdict

WASHINGTON, May 19. (P)—Even supreme court justices make mistakes.

In his opinion yesterday invalidating the Guffey coal act, Justice Sutherland gave newspapermen a few anxious moments by a reverse use of "the former" and "the latter."

Referring to price fixing and labor provisions of the act, his decision said in conclusion:

Roosevelt Asked to Open Newport Harbor Pageant

President Roosevelt has been invited to participate in formal dedication of Newport harbor next Saturday. Senator Hiram Johnson has asked the nation's executive to open the celebration by sending a naval radio signal to a coast guard cutter anchored at the harbor entrance.

This signal would be the command for the cutter to fire a gun that would start a parade of boats into the port, an Associated Press dispatch from Washington said.

The recent improvements in Newport harbor were made with federal financial assistance.

Pink Socials, Shooting of Wild Dogs Furnished Fun For S. A. Fifty Years Ago

By BOB GUILD
Ho-hum. What'll we do tonight? Movies, ball game, radio, bridge, cocktail party, automobile ride, dance? Shall we call some one up and have them drop over? Or shall we just pick up a new magazine, turn on the favorite lamp and spend a quiet evening by the fire? Not much to do in a town this size, you say?

Say, you should have been here 50 years ago when they took their fun where they found it—and they found it, too.

Back in July, 1886, for instance, the ladies of the Baptist church had a Pink Social, in Dibble's hall that was an unqualified success for fun. They had a packed hall, plenty of refreshments, and diversion aplenty from the "ice-cream guerrillas" who swooped down on the affair. Look what the Santa Ana Herald had to say:

"You will, of course, be fully informed as to the entire success of the Pink Social, given by the ladies of the W. R. C. in Dibble's hall. But I question if your informant will touch upon the inconceivable littleness that prompted many to leave the hall without partaking of the delicacies prepared by fairy hands. (Don't blush, Comrades Sheffer, Berry and Cummings.) This is so unkind to those who worked so untiringly and whose object was to provide for our every assistance, that it is a duty to ferret out and make known the names of those who have so disgraced the name of manhood. Words are inadequate to express my contempt for such shysters as those above mentioned."

Some fun, huh? But there was more to come. Next week the informant decided he'd been having even too much fun, and wrote again:

"In my article on the Pink Social I fired a random shot at a lot of unknown scallawags, and in the same article I sought to convey to Messrs. S. B. and C. (who everybody does know) the assurance that their efforts to make that orphaned children can be better supervised, especially in rural areas."

Amend child welfare statutes to furnish more flexible administration of state and federal funds so that orphaned children can be better supervised, especially in rural areas.

Other Objectives
Permit trusts and insurance companies to purchase state warrants and make them available for purchase by cities and towns out of reserve funds.

Validate school bonds to provide a source of funds to supplement WPA money.

Amend the state unemployment insurance act to assure return of funds paid in if either the state or national acts are declared unconstitutional.

Titterton Murder Trial Starts

NEW YORK, May 19. (P)—John C. Fioenza went on trial for his life today in general sessions court for the strangulation slaying of a fiction writer, Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, last April 10.

Vandenberg Urges States Run Relief

WASHINGTON, May 19. (P)—Republican criticism of the Works Progress administration was heard today by the senate appropriations subcommittee considering the $2,364,229,712 relief-deficiency bill.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) went before the committee in closed session to urge that states and local subdivisions be given the responsibility for carrying out the relief program. He has introduced an amendment for such a purpose, calling upon local governments to produce at least 25 per cent of the cost of carrying on relief.

The remainder would be made up by the federal government.

CITY COUNCIL WORKS FOR BIRTHDAY

Mayor Rowland, Layton And Penn Named to Help Celebration

The Santa Ana city council last night got behind the movement to give Santa Ana a real birthday party to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary. On a motion by Councilman Joseph P. Smith, a committee was appointed to work with service clubs and other organizations which are lending their support to the project.

Those on the committee are Mayor Fred Rowland, honorary chairman for the city-wide celebration, Councilman Ernest Layton and Councilman William Penn. The motion for appointment of the committee was seconded by Councilman Plummer Bruns. Dr. Melbourne Mabree, president of the Kiwanis club, is general chairman for the affair.

"50 Years of Progress"
Fifty years of progress will be the theme of the affair, which will be a barbecue and lawn party at the municipal pool on June 3.

Judge F. C. Drumm will be master of ceremonies at the microphone. It was announced today by Rodney Bacon, chairman of an organization committee representing the various participating organizations. Service clubs and other groups will hold a joint meeting at the barbecue, to which the entire city will be invited.

Make Final Plans Today
Today at 1:30 p. m. the council committee met with Dr. Mabree and his service club committee, at James cafe, to make final plans and assign various features of arrangements to participating organizations. Presidents of each of the organizations will form a Fifty Years of Progress Commission to take charge of the project.

Organizations participating are the Kiwanis club, Lions club, Rotary club, 20-30 club, American Legion, Elbell club and the Woman's club of Santa Ana.

Fight Use of 'Red Squad' on Strikers

BERKELEY, May 19. (P)—Protests against the use of the so-called "red squad" in the farm workers strike in Los Angeles were sent to Governor Merriam, Attorney General U. S. Webb and the mayor of Los Angeles today by the committee sponsoring the first California Conference of Agricultural Workers.

Sam White, secretary of the conference, said the governor and attorney general were asked to take action to prevent violation of civil rights of the strikers.

New Deal Fights To Replace Coal Act, Keep Relief

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Swiftly would take to price fixing if en-moves to write a new Guffey coal control act and to continue most of the huge relief drive were made today by officials in the aftermath of two blows dealt the New Deal program in the courts.

President Roosevelt was silent on the supreme court decision demolishing the Guffey act to regulate wages and hours and fix prices in the bituminous coal industry, and on a District of Columbia court of appeals decision which called a halt on part of the $4,880,000,000 relief program.

While New Dealers decried the decisions and their foes hailed them, a conference was hastily called last night. Authoritative sources said that representatives of the national bituminous coal commission, the justice department, some operators backing the Guffey act and mine union leaders attended and immediately set to work to draft a new coal regulation bill.

Word was passed that the key-stone of the new measure, expected to be introduced into congress soon, would be price regulation and marketing provisions. The supreme court majority, in a sweeping decision, had ruled that the Guffey act's provisions for regulating wages and hours were unconstitutional invasion of state's rights. It also knocked out price-fixing clauses on the ground that they were in violation of the labor provisions, but it was non-committal on what attitude it took to the supreme court, the administration made it plain the flow of relief billions would go on.

The Guffey coal act decision, in which the supreme court split three ways, raised questions among lawyers here as to the fate of the Wagner labor relations act, regulating employee-employer relations in other industries.

The Guffey act decision was so sweeping that it seemed to many to outlaw all federal regulation of hours, wages and working conditions in production industries.

HENNING CUTS OFF FAMILY

Gives Davis, Salvation Army Each a Quarter Of Large Estate

Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis, for many years legal advisor to Louis Henning, pioneer Anaheim citrus rancher, today was a rich man by virtue of his long association with the Anaheim man.

Mr. Henning, who died May 14 after falling into his tractor while at work on his ranch, left one-quarter of his large estate to Mr. Davis, one-quarter to the Salvation Army, a quarter to his 10-year-old grandson, Leighton M. Henning, and a quarter to his housekeeper, Mrs. Agnes Wallner.

His estranged wife and seven children were cut off with $5 each.

Mr. Henning at one time was reputed to be worth almost $1,000,000. His 80-acre ranch is one of the richest in Orange county, and he owns various stocks and securities, the value of which has not been fully estimated. His estate was lessened some years ago, when he made a large property settlement on his wife, when they separated.

The will was filed for probate late yesterday afternoon by Mr. Davis, who is named as sole executor.

His natural heirs, Mrs. Otella Henning; two daughters, Anna Lizzie and Martha Henning; and five sons, Walter, Henry, Otto, Arthur and Richard Henning, all of Anaheim, were cut off in the will "because each and all of them have been very unkind and unbecomingly to the testator."

The Henning will was drawn on May 27, 1931. Mr. Henning died in the Anaheim Sanitarium 24 hours after the accident, without regaining consciousness.

S. A. Man Writing For Movies Now

Allan Vaughn Elston, 2121 North Flower street, Santa Ana, who has gained national recognition as a novelist, recently signed a long term contract with the Republic Studios, Hollywood, it was learned by The Journal today. Mr. Elston has been in Hollywood for the past two weeks, where he is writing for the motion picture concern.

Mrs. Elston, when interviewed today, said a recent novel of Mr. Elston's, "Corpus Delicti," is now under production by Republic Studios. The story which is being filmed ran in Cosmopolitan several months ago and was recently purchased by Republic Studios. Mr. Elston has been writing for magazines for the past 10 years. Many of his stories have appeared in such well known publications as Esquire and American Magazine.

'Needed Millions'

Blaming President Roosevelt's administration, and saying he feared the congressional investigating committee would impound the Townsend organization's finances, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, above, today testified before the committee that his organization needed the millions of dollars he had asked of his followers as a "defense fund."

PENSION HEAD ON STAND IN CAPITAL

'We'll Get Millions to Carry on,' He Says; Crowd on Hand

WASHINGTON, May 19. (P)—The Roosevelt administration was described today by Dr. F. E. Townsend as "the hostile force" behind the house investigation of his revolving old age pension movement.

The retired Long Beach, Calif., physician said the "unfriendly attitude" of the committee made necessary his recent appeal for a defense fund to be spent at his discretion.

'We Need Millions'
"We need millions to carry on a movement like this, and we are going to get them," he testified.

Dr. Townsend denied assertions he started the pension movement to make a "hat full of money" or for the sole purpose of obtaining "cold cash."

A crowded committee room, with people standing in the aisles, listened intently as James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, examined the elderly, retired California physician, who in four years has become a national figure through his plan to pay $200 a month pensions to all over 60.

Townsend Voted Down
At the outset, Representative Tolson (D., Calif.), a Townsendite committee member, protested the line of questioning, but he was overruled by Chairman Bell (D., Mo.). The committee sustained Bell by a 4 to 2 vote.

"Did you not say, 'This old sister has done her part,' when you received a $100,000 salary for a woman member?" Sullivan asked the witness.

"Absolutely not," Dr. Townsend replied.

For the most part he sat quietly at the witness table and listened intently as Sullivan read testimony given before a sub-committee in California.

The pension leader was asked whether an expectation to build the Townsend Weekly to a national magazine the size of the Saturday Evening Post with similar financial returns was not one of the main reasons for starting the movement.

"We do hope we can build it to that size," he said.

Sullivan introduced the record a (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

G. O. P. May Adopt Plank on Soil

CHICAGO, May 18. (P)—The Republican party may adopt a farm plank similar to the present soil conservation act, but with heavier emphasis on state control, at their national convention in Cleveland next month.

Such a possibility was seen today if the plank is written by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, as proposed yesterday by former President Herbert Hoover and by Harrison Spangler, director of the Republican national committee's western headquarters here.

3 Policemen Beaten In Harlem Fight

NEW YORK, May 19. (P)—More than 100 police officers restored order in Harlem today after three patrolmen were beaten and a negro woman shot in a disturbance which began as a protest to Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

Lee Cornish was shot in the ankle by Patrolman Michael Roman, who said the negro struck him during a melee between officers and demonstrators.

Fascists Ordered To Join Militia

ROME, May 19. (P)—The Fascist party directorate today ordered all Fascists between the ages of 21 and 55 to enroll in a black shirt militia, "confirming the inexhaustible and warlike spirit of the black shirts and the character of Roman peace."

The order, which applies to all men capable of bearing arms, will make the militia number more than 1,000,000 men.

HOOVER NOT CANDIDATE

Former President in Formal Statement About Activity

CHICAGO, May 19. (P)—Herbert Hoover's assertion that he was "not a candidate" but solely concerned with placing "critical issues" before the nation turned attention toward the shaping of a Republican platform today.

The former president, in a formal statement issued here late yesterday, set forth:

"It should be evident by this time that I am not a candidate."

His Only Interest
I have stated many times that I have no interest but to get these critical issues before the country.

"And get one thing straight. I am not opposing any of the candidates. My concern is with principles."

Some observers linked Mr. Hoover's announcement that he opposed no aspirant to the party's presidential nomination with the recent California primary. There a slate of uninstructed delegates supported by Mr. Hoover defeated a group carrying the banner of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

Speculation Ends
The pronouncement ended speculation over the nature of the former president's conference with party leaders in Maryland. It said:

"My discussions with senators, congressmen and others who visited me from Washington over the week-end related wholly to the Republican platform."

IS ZIONCHECK HAVING FUN!

Drinks Soup Out of Plate

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, May 19. (P)—Representative Marion Zioncheck, again in a merry mood, led the placid Virgin Islands in his gaily today.

Zioncheck and his bride of a few weeks hastened there in a naval plane to escape turbulent patriotic demonstrations which punctuated their honeymoon stay in San Juan.

When they got there they said St. Thomas, by contrast, was "heaven."

Today, other guests aboard the German cruiser Karlsruhe testified to Zioncheck's complete bliss.

While dancing on the cruiser, they said, he shouted at his wife: "We may be broke, but ain't we happy?"

Then, while officers and guests were standing at attention during the playing of various national anthems, the congressman strolled away puffing a cigar.

Just to show he could do it, diners at the Bluebeard's Castle hotel declared, he drank his soup from a plate.

Unfortunately, some dancing couples received a champagne shower when Zioncheck subsequently opened an unusually effervescent bottle.

In a playful mood on the way home, or so the story goes, the honeymooner bit his chauffeur and took the wheel himself. He likes to drive.

Cadet Bails Out Of Burning Plane

MARCH FIELD, Calif., May 19. (P)—Flying Cadet Douglas W. Smith successfully bailed out of a swift army pursuit plane today a few minutes before it crashed and burned four miles south of here.

Smith made his parachute jump from 1500 feet and landed unhurt, 75 feet from the wreckage of the airplane near shaft No. 4 of the Val Verde tunnel of the Metropolitan Water District.

THREE NAVY VESSELS, MERCHANT SHIP CRIPPLED IN CRASHES

CRUISER AND STEAMER COLLIDE

Accidents Happen While Fleet Maneuvers off Panama Waters

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP)—Three naval vessels and a merchant ship sustained minor damage in a series of accidents during the last three days in the annual fleet maneuvers in the Pacific off Panama.

The navy department revealed today that the heavy cruiser Minneapolis and the freight steamer Marore were in what was described as a minor collision in the outer harbor at Balboa, Canal Zone, on May 9. The damage to both was said to have been so slight as not to necessitate docking for repairs.

Battle Ships in Trouble
Simultaneously, the navy announced that the battleships Mississippi and New Mexico developed turbine trouble while actively engaged in the maneuvers and, escorted by three mine layers, were proceeding under reduced speed to the naval base at San Pedro, Calif., for repairs. They have been detached from the maneuvers, which have been in progress for more than two weeks.

The announcement said reports that the Mississippi and New Mexico had been in collisions were baseless.

The accident at Balboa occurred while the Minneapolis and the Marore were maneuvering in the outer harbor at slow speed.

Upper Deck Damaged
The naval vessel was en route to her berth after having taken on fuel from an oil tanker some distance away. Her upper deck was damaged superficially and her bow was bent slightly five feet above the water line.

Details of the damage to the Marore were unknown here, but it was described as so slight as not to necessitate her turning back.

A naval board of inquiry will investigate.

The Marore is listed as a freighter of 8215 tons, operated by the Ore Steamship Corporation of Delaware. Her home port is New York.

MORE ABOUT 50 YEARS AGO

The social financial success was known and appreciated; that my meaning was so vaguely expressed as to make any construction possible was an inadvertence that I regret. The more so since I have been compelled to keep pretty shady ever since through fear of disastrous consequences.

When the said S. B. and C. have had sufficient time to cipher out the fairies, the ice-cream guerillas or the relief corps, I will come forth from my retreat and resume my biz."

O. K., and good fun, don't you think? But there were hazards, too, in that hey-day day. In the same paper appeared this banner story:

"W. H. Spurgeon had his whiskers burned off this week. It seems someone had let the oil run in the boiler covering the bottom of it, and when he made a fire in it the flames burst into his face."

They Dispute Shooting
In one column there is a paragraph stating that haphazard shooting of the city would be stopped. But in the San Francisco Examiner for that date was a story about bands of wild dogs that roamed the streets, "killing chickens and hogs, in the city of Santa Ana, Los Angeles county."

That looked like pretty good fun, but the indignant Herald said: "It is a lie out of whole cloth! A coyote, now and then, appears in the city, but they do not roam through the town, killing chickens and hogs."

The inhabitants of this young town sparked along the road on the way to the city of Anaheim, while Dobbin pulled the rig; they went either-bullying in the river bottom, and had, picnic; they went to church socials, and about that time Miss Isabel Morris and her excellent company presented Pygmalion and Galatea" to a packed house in Spurgeon's Opera house. When the school closed on the term the paper said "an id-fashioned spelling bee will take place in the evening and there will be lots of fun." That's what it said.

And speaking of fun in Santa Ana—here's something from the next week's paper:

There Was a Fracas
"A fracas occurred in the usually quiet village of Tustin on Tuesday evening. H. Gray had staked his horse on the alfalfa patch of Mr. Pendorf, and was called to account for the same. Hot words followed, until finally Pendorf was invited to the street to fight. He came out and was thrashing Gray severely when the parties were separated, and Pendorf went home. As he was going, Gray, who had procured an iron stake pin, came up behind, and struck him a blow on the head, causing Pendorf to run, he thinking it was a pistol. While Gray was boasting of his feat, Pendorf returned with a pistol and gave his adversary a dose of anything by complimentary epithets. No arrests." But some fun.

This was quite a place. Socials and programs ended with a huge

S. A. CHAMBER OFFERS TO HELP ALMA

The Santa Ana chamber of commerce today sent an offer to Alma Whitaker, Los Angeles journalist, offering its services in her difficulty over building a house at Sunset Beach. Miss Whitaker has been denied permission to build a second house on her lot there, because there is not enough space to comply with the county zoning ordinance.

Fugitive Convict Is Near Capture

McALESTER, Okla., May 19. (AP)—Fresh officers and bloodhounds were rushed into the brush-covered mountains near Clayton today after another appearance of Claude Beavers, the elusive leader of the Oklahoma penitentiary break.

Possemen expressed belief it would be only a matter of hours before they captured the convict, who said he would rather be shot than surrender.

Beavers is one of three felons still at large after last week's break in which a brickyard foreman was killed and a guard wounded.

supper, usually "exquisitely prepared," and then the rugs were rolled up and everyone danced until morning. If they had to take a pot shot at a couple of wild dogs on the way home that only added spice to the evening. On week-ends it was a great stunt to load the wagon with nearly everyone and go down to the beach, singing all the way home in the moonlight.

And by day Santa Ana worked, because it was forging a name and a place in the sun for itself. In fact it must have worked more than anything, but it had its fun.

Can He Take It?

letter from Dr. Townsend to Robert E. Clements, former national secretary, Jan. 16, 1935, which said:

"You and I have the world by the tail on a down-hill pull on this thing if we work it right."

Applause greeted Dr. Townsend's statement that his followers "feel like I feel about the old parties," and that a third party would be formed "as soon as the opportunity presents itself."

Assails Townsend
Chairman Bell warned that the room would be emptied if there was any further demonstration.

Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, contended Dr. Townsend "was sailing under false colors in condemning the old parties and at the same time laying plans for a third party."

The witness also denied there was any deceit in urging Townsendites to support candidates of both parties, while condemning those parties and their policies.

"I do," Dr. Townsend replied firmly when asked if he believed his plan would provide leisure for the aged.

He rose to his feet to explain the phrase, in one of his letters, "there might be millions in it."

"We plan to get those millions," Dr. Townsend said. "It takes millions to promote a plan of this kind."

Dr. Townsend said "the unfriendly attitude" of the committee led him to believe the committee might try to impound the organization's funds. This belief, he said, explained his recent appeal for a "defense fund."

"It has appeared to me from the beginning that this committee has been more interested in besmirching the character of people than in learning the truth or merit of the Townsend movement," the witness said.

Likes Lincoln, Washington
Dr. Townsend said questioning of Robert E. Clements, former national secretary had been directed to give the impression that "I am a dishonest man."

The doctor said the people "have a pretty good opinion of me," but added that he was not always "the soft spoken, mild mannered old chap," he is often described to be.

He conceded he would like to be classed with Washington and Lincoln, with whom he is ranked in Townsend literature.

"I like that company," Dr. Townsend said.

He said he had received about $68,000 from the organization but had spent much of it for expenses and in promoting the movement.

Reads Third Party Leader
Sullivan read into the record another letter written by Dr. Townsend, from Butte, Mont., Sept. 4, 1935, to Clements, suggesting a third party.

It said in part: "I tell you, old fellow, the way for us to lick the stuffing out of the old parties is to become militant and go after them hammer and tongs for being totally incompetent, as we know they are."

22 VACANCIES IN TRUSTEE JOBS HERE

County Supt. of Schools Ray Adkinson is worried over the lack of developments preparatory to the coming school trustee elections, to be held June 5. There are 55 school districts in the county slated to hold trustee elections on that date, he said, and of that number there are still 22 districts in which there have been no declarations of candidacy filed.

The battle was begun two years ago when Mr. Robinson filed grand theft charges against Mr. McClintock for the alleged misappropriation of a mountain cabin in Trabuco canyon.

Mr. McClintock was found not guilty in a superior court trial and then sued Mr. and Mrs. Robinson for false arrest, winning a judgment for $2300. He then found himself unable to serve them with papers, and called them to court for collection of the judgment, he said today.

Being heard at the same time was the petition of the Robinsons to vacate a homestead estate on the same property originally involved. The case was being heard before Superior Judge Homer G. Ames.

"Suicide Easy"
Mrs. Simpson, who had been said to have made threats against herself, said while on the witness stand yesterday:

"I would just like to suggest to the jury this: The facilities one has, if he desired to do violence to himself while incarcerated in the Orange County hospital, as anyone can see if he pays a visit to that institution. In this Orange county hospital there is a length of rope on the window of my cell which pulls the window in—a clothesline cord. Anyone who really wanted to commit suicide could very easily tie that around his neck, and commit suicide."

She also stated that a crochet hook, a nail file and similar articles were left in her possession by the authorities, although she was "supposed to be dangerous to herself."

Accuses Nurse
In one part of her testimony she accuses a nurse of breaking a thermometer in her mouth last Thursday, and then denying she did it, and accuses hospital physicians and the nurses of covering up their "derelictions."

She testified that she at all times offered to give Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis "all the information he wanted" about the "deplorable" state of affairs at the hospital, and accused him and Deputy District Attorney Clarence Sprague of forcing her into a court trial without allowing time to prepare her case, and of refusing to give her a chance for a fair trial.

Plans Court Fight
Mrs. Simpson indicated after the jury had returned with its verdict that she would renew a court fight to regain custody of her four daughters, who were taken from her on a court order several years ago, when she was confined in a mental hospital in New York.

Mrs. Simpson recounted experiences since 1919 in her lengthy testimony, occupying Friday afternoon and all morning yesterday.

START SINGLE TAX BATTLE WEDNESDAY

Fourteen organizations forming a county-wide committee working against the proposed single tax will launch their campaign formally at a meeting Wednesday night, it was announced today by J. A. Smiley, chairman of the county-wide committee. Von T. Ellsworth, head of the research department of the state farm bureau, will be guest speaker.

The meeting, to be held at the Willard school auditorium at 7:30 p. m., will be open to the public.

Another movement along the same line has been launched by the Tri-County Advisory board of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties. This body will hold a meeting at the Holmstrom cafe in Riverside at 6:30 p. m. May 27. Howard I. Wood, secretary of the chamber of commerce, George Kellogg of Yorba Linda, former president of the Associated chambers of commerce, and Harry May, secretary of the Fullerton chamber of commerce, have been named as Orange county delegates to the meeting. Edwin Elliott, vice president of the Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles, will be the speaker.

ROBINSONS IN COURT AGAIN

A court battle of two years standing between Louis Robinson, Trabuco canyon rancher, and Earl McClintock, a neighbor, flared into open battle again today when Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were haled into superior court to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for allegedly attempting to evade service of a summons.

The summons was issued in connection with a $2300 judgment won several months ago by Mr. McClintock against the Robinsons, in a suit in which he charged false arrest.

Mrs. Simpson, who had been said to have made threats against herself, said while on the witness stand yesterday:

"I would just like to suggest to the jury this: The facilities one has, if he desired to do violence to himself while incarcerated in the Orange County hospital, as anyone can see if he pays a visit to that institution. In this Orange county hospital there is a length of rope on the window of my cell which pulls the window in—a clothesline cord. Anyone who really wanted to commit suicide could very easily tie that around his neck, and commit suicide."

She also stated that a crochet hook, a nail file and similar articles were left in her possession by the authorities, although she was "supposed to be dangerous to herself."

Accuses Nurse
In one part of her testimony she accuses a nurse of breaking a thermometer in her mouth last Thursday, and then denying she did it, and accuses hospital physicians and the nurses of covering up their "derelictions."

She testified that she at all times offered to give Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis "all the information he wanted" about the "deplorable" state of affairs at the hospital, and accused him and Deputy District Attorney Clarence Sprague of forcing her into a court trial without allowing time to prepare her case, and of refusing to give her a chance for a fair trial.

Plans Court Fight
Mrs. Simpson indicated after the jury had returned with its verdict that she would renew a court fight to regain custody of her four daughters, who were taken from her on a court order several years ago, when she was confined in a mental hospital in New York.

Mrs. Simpson recounted experiences since 1919 in her lengthy testimony, occupying Friday afternoon and all morning yesterday.

KERSEY COMPARES BUSINESS AND EDUCATION HERE

Drawing a parallel between business and educational problems, Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of schools, last night addressed Santa Ana teachers and business men in the Willard auditorium. The meeting was sponsored by the Santa Ana Home-Owned Business association.

"The community is not for business, but business is for the community," Mr. Kersey declared, quoting the late Woodrow Wilson. The same is true of school, which no longer determine the thought and culture of a community, but conform to the community's demands in education, he added.

The speaker was introduced by Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools. J. H. Bell, president of the local business association, presided. J. O. Smith, secretary of the Santa Monica home-owned business group, spoke briefly following Mr. Kersey's address.

Competition is responsible for the change in business and educational procedure, Mr. Kersey averred. He cited as an example the isolated small town with only one store of each kind. Residents were forced to purchase what those merchants had to sell. When only a few attained higher education, the secondary schools determined what courses should be given.

With education general and stores offering a variety of merchandise, it is necessary to have "appetizers," the speaker insisted. The interests of business men and educators are now closer together than ever before, he said, with schools expected to prepare young people for work, and the business men expected to provide employment for graduates.

Articles can be standardized, but not patrons or pupils, he stressed, urging both merchants and teachers to study their community, meet its needs and create demands for things which are lacking.

Boy Knives Girl Watching Movie

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP)—Police Lieutenant Benjamin Kuehling said today that John Trazzare, 17, had confessed to stabbing a 16-year-old girl while watching a thrilling movie scene.

The boy related, Kuehling said, that he was holding an open knife in his hand when the picture of a man wrestling an alligator was flashed on the screen. Kuehling said he rammed the knife into the shoulder of Anne Blunt, 16, who was seated just in front of him.

"Something came over me," the officer quoted Trazzare as saying.

The Sidewalk Spectator:

To The Journal: The very idea of declaring that the resettlement administration part of the $4,880,000,000 (pronounced four billion, eight hundred eighty million) relief act is invalid, right when the political campaigns are just getting under way!

"Course no one would insinuate that the money would have anything to do with the political campaigns but it is apt to keep those poker-playing boys down in Washington when they'd rather be swinging their arms and fists at the conventions.

Oh, well, why worry? Looks like the courts have wasted their time, at least as far as Harry L. Hopkins is concerned. His spokesman says the work relief program will go on despite the decision.

DEATH MYSTERY IS CLOSED

The last act of a strange drama of mystery and death that began in Orange county was ended today in Los Angeles, when the will of Barbara Muller, Los Angeles, was admitted to probate.

Her $400,000 estate was left to Jack Bodin, jr. The body of Jack Bodin, sr., was washed ashore in Orange county in April, 1933, after he and Miss Muller had disappeared from a ship en route from San Diego to Wilmington. In their stateroom was found a penicillin will leaving her estate to the younger Bodin.

The heiress was never found. Two of her aunts, Elizabeth Kramer and Barbara Szabo, contested the document on the ground that she was not of sound mind when executing it.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

THE EDITORIAL sides are laughing. From laughing at Jim Farquhar's "Jackrabbits Giganticus" and the alleged storm it created in Huntington Beach. Hope you feel the same way about it, because here you're going to get the second edition of Jim's jackrabbit story.

Last week we re-printed the startling discovery of a 287-pound jackrabbit by M. M. McCullen, beach gasoline mogul. We were forced to believe Jim's story because he also printed a picture of the beast, which was shot in the wilds of Arizona.

Here's the latest from the battle front in Huntington Beach.

"I took that picture and story of a 287-pound rabbit reported in last week's 'News' by M. M. McCullen home and showed it to Little Audrey," said Glenn S. Wood, Huntington Beach World war veteran with Universal Pictures. "And believe you me, she just laughed and laughed. That's no jackrabbit. It's a picture of a dog. Always hangs down that way when hanging up and it may look like a rabbit in the picture, but I know pictures and McCullen's so-called 'Jackrabbits Giganticus' is nothing more than a dead deer."

"In my Hollywood picture experience, I have seen a lot of nature fakers come and go. I've seen Hoot Gibson's wife double for him and take the risks he feared to. I've viewed some strange so called jungle antics with toothless old lions. But this boy McCullen would make Baron Munchausen toss his book in the river and scream 'Kamrad!'"

Mr. Wood, who was identified with the oil industry here before entering the movie business, a resident of Huntington Beach for some 15 years past and has made an intimate study of wild life calculated to equip him to challenge the authenticity of any statement Mr. McCullen might make.

While local opinion is bitterly divided, such students of beavers and other small woodland creatures as Sam Clapp, stoutly maintain that Mr. McCullen is right.

"If my wife will let me go and Jim Macklin will furnish the transportation," said the United Realty corporation president this morning, "I will leave my business long enough to make an expedition into the wilds of Arizona and bring one of the two known living specimens of Jackrabbits Giganticus back to Huntington Beach on a halter. While I have never seen one, if my old side-kick McCullen says they're there, it's good enough for me."

McCullen meanwhile is furious. He paced his new knotty pine inner sanctum with his oriental drapes on the broad McCullen acres at Seventeenth and Garfield this morning in a dither of rage.

Shaking his shaggy dark locks off his majestic brow he foamed, "Always belittling. From my earliest Boy Scout days when I first studied the habits of rabbits until now, no one has ever before dared to challenge my knowledge of rabbit culture. It's preposterous."

"Who is this upstart, anyhow," he cried, stopping short in his mad pace, his luminous dark eyes snapping dangerously.

When told that Mr. Wood helped make "All Quiet on the Western Front," and many other million dollar successes, he sneered contemptuously. "The man Wood may know something about the 'Western Front' but that's not Arizona. So, what?"

"I am especially annoyed," continued the irrepressible Marcus, striking a pose with feet stuck apart, "at the suggestion by Doc Road that Leonard Chubb's whippersnappers chased one of the Rabbits Giganticus. Why it's ridiculous. This ferocious beast would tear a dog limb for limb." And the mighty oil tycoon tore a page from the Huntington Beach News into infinitesimal bits by way of illustration.

Meanwhile the chamber of commerce tinner asunder by the charges and counter charges has about decided to select a picked crew of western scouts led by "Sparky" Cross and "Tall Timber" Bundy to plunge into the Arizona everglades under oath to bring a Jackrabbits Giganticus back alive, or deep right on going.

Plans launched last week for a municipal super-parking lot of 75,000 square feet on the Balboa beach front struck a snag today. The Beach Preservation association of Newport Beach and unincorporated group consisting of E. H. Day, Maurice Griffin, W. G. Fraser, A. B. West, T. D. Duque, Pember Castleman and Leon Hesseman, instituted suit in superior court asking an injunction restraining the city of Newport Beach from any further work on the subject.

The plans for the parking lot were announced following a special meeting of the council last week, at which it accepted deed to the property, comprising ocean frontage from 11th to Washington street, from E. G. Burlingame, beach amusement man.

Plans also included the forming of various one-way streets in downtown Balboa, to relieve traffic and parking congestion, and the addition of a 200-foot wide beach front highway.

The petitioners filed the restraining order against the city on the grounds that the council had no right to authorize the work without first consulting the city planning commission, and that the project would favor certain property holders, in that it would skyrocket values of property immediately adjoining the project, and lower other values.

Lewis Walks Out
Capt. Fred E. Lewis, noted Balboa sportsman and yachtsman, who recently constructed a bay-front parking lot, resigned from the chamber of commerce in protest, after that body had endorsed the parking lot proposal.

The city council, the complaint states, is at the present time pumping dirt and gravel on the site in preparation for the project.

The request for the injunction was presented to Presiding Judge G. K. Scovel yesterday afternoon by B. Z. McKinney, attorney for the plaintiffs, and city attorney of San Clemente.

Hearing on the matter probably will be held before Judge Scovel on Friday, May 29.

NEW PARK AT HUNTINGTON PLANNED

Tax Delinquent Property May Be Taken Over For Playground

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Plans were started by the city council last night to establish one of the finest play centers in the Southland when first steps were taken to secure 11 lots on Main street for a park. The proposed park would be located across the street from Circle park on the west and only Main street would divide the new park from the Main street park where the Boy Scout cabin is located.

There is $1500 delinquent taxes against the property and City Attorney Ray Overacker proposed that the city offer $10 for the ground and pay the county taxes. There would be an added cost of $35 for advertising and it would cost approximately $900 to clean up the grounds ready for park purposes, Attorney Overacker said.

After discussion, council members instructed the attorney to look further into the subject and make a report next Monday.

Chief of Police Grant was ordered to enforce an ordinance which prohibits distribution of newspapers other than those delivered to regular customers.

An application to open a tango parlor was made by Grover Pounds and was referred to the city attorney for investigation.

"Floating Peril"

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

The Englishman rose gloomily to his feet.

"I would be quite content to let the future look after itself if I could have had that five minute talk with Edouard Mermillion tonight," he declared. "See you later, Mason. I'm going to watch the baccarat and get a word with de Brett if I can. He is a great friend of Mermillion's and if he's coming back he would be sure to know."

The French Minister was not the only one who had hurried away from the Royal dinner party. Mermillion's car had scarcely reached Villefranche when the famous car of the Princess de Fantasy flashed past him. It was not for nothing that she had earned the reputation as a lover of speed. She possessed the fastest motor boat upon the coast and the car into which she stepped on leaving the Sporting Club climbed the lighthouse hill at Antibes in something like forty minutes after her departure.

The Englishman sighed. "A private word with him might have been immensely useful," he grumbled. "You do not interest yourself in our troubles nowadays, Mason, but I can tell you that they are real enough."

"I have had plenty of work in my time," the American replied. "My stuff now is invested where neither the mice nor the tigers can get at it and I've quit worrying."

"It is not altogether a matter of finance," the Englishman remarked. "I had a kind of idea" Mr. Seth Mason observed, rolling around his cigar between his fingers, "that affairs in France were looking pretty good these days. She is the quaintest country on the face of the map. She has done everything in the most logical fashion, she ought to be a trouble to no one."

"He is the man with the brains," the Englishman admitted. "In my opinion, if he had the chance, he could be a greater man and a greater figure in Europe than either of these opportunist dictators."

"The only question about him in my mind," the American put in, "is whether he is dead square."

"There is no doubt that he is the man who saved France from revolution after those governmentals. It was just dawning upon the people that the Tostit affair was nothing but a pimple on a huge body of corruption. They were just beginning to seethe with fury, to demand something more than these sham investigations."

"Mermillon takes that to put scandal in a good humor you take off a tax in which he is interested. Some day or other, however, one or two pretty awkward questions will have to be answered, especially if an honest budget is presented. When that time comes Mermillon will have to declare himself."

"From my information," she too, was dining Lucien, her daughter, has made friends with Hamer Wildburn, the young man who owns the boat. She told her mother of my foolish little enterprise and of their visit. Fortunately the young man doesn't know me by sight."

"Mon Dieu! But how did you arrive at this information?" she asked, looking at her daughter. "You were dining Lucien, her daughter, has made friends with Hamer Wildburn, the young man who owns the boat. She told her mother of my foolish little enterprise and of their visit. Fortunately the young man doesn't know me by sight."

"Events are moving quickly. They have only just arrived but he has already been on board the boat. Mermillon has been offered even an absurd price. This young man, Hamer Wildburn, who owns the boat, must know."

"From my information," she too, was dining Lucien, her daughter, has made friends with Hamer Wildburn, the young man who owns the boat. She told her mother of my foolish little enterprise and of their visit. Fortunately the young man doesn't know me by sight."

"Wildburn's dossier is harmless enough," General Perissol reflected.

"There is more to tell you, Armand. I fear that it means complications. He knows of your presence here."

"Ah!"

"For your sake, beloved," she went on, "I have sacrificed my reputation. He believes that you came here secretly to be near me—as indeed you did before this thing happened. It is so, is it not, Armand?"

"For no other reason," he assured her. "It seems to me, then, that the great harm is done. She clung to his arm.

"Alas, there is worse to be told," she went on anxiously. "You must not be angry, my lover. It was all the result of that foolish hope of mine that I might be of use to you. He knows that I, too, have visited the 'Bird of Paradise'."

"That is without doubt awkward," he admitted.

"You remember the Marie Antoinette necklace that I bought in London?" she continued. "He also was at the sale. As a matter of fact, he was bidding against me. I am wearing it—as you see. He recognized it and he saw that the pendant was missing. I dropped that pendant on the 'Bird of Paradise.' He saw it there."

Perissol's expression was for a moment grim. He remained silent, however.

"My dear," she went on, clinging to his arm, "I was so ashamed of my ridiculous failure—the attempt, I think, came from reading these foolish English detective stories in which the woman always seems to be able to find anything that I never made any inquiries even about my emerald. I was willing to consider it lost, although it is invaluable, if the young man didn't find out to whom it belonged and returned it. But there you are. He saw it and he knows of my visit. You are not angry, Armand?"

"Not I," he answered fondly. "What you don't realize, my dear Louise, is this. You bring more valuable information than you have given away. Edouard Mermillion should have let you know of his visit to the boat. It is the first mistake I have ever detected in him. You tell me that he has actually been on board the 'Bird of Paradise'?"

"I know it for a fact," she replied. "Not only that, but I know that he tried to buy the boat. That, of course, he would not have told me but he knows nothing about the girl and her friendship with the young man. Two boats in the same harbor—it was nothing that he should have paid a visit. It is just chance of the visit."

"After all," he assured her with a smile, "you have been much cleverer than you had any idea of. Lily Montclair is your cousin, isn't she? The young man is, of course, a friend of the family. Your visit might have been explained. Louise, I thank you. With the whole of my staff you can be trusted watching, you are the first one who has brought me anything definite."

She leaned a little forward and gave him a look that was even demanded. He held her lightly in his arms for several minutes, then he released her, sat back in his chair and tapped thoughtfully upon the table.

"The owner of the Bird of Paradise," this young man, Hamer Wildburn, who owns the boat, she reflected. "What, then, will be Mermillion's next step? It must be something rapid beyond a doubt, something he must have already decided upon when he was so naive with you."

Helen Hayes Will Take Busman's Holiday to London

NEW YORK, May 19. (AP)—Helen Hayes, who sometimes feels more like Queen Victoria than like Helen Hayes, is going to England next month to recapture the feeling of being only Hayes.

"What I want is a nice change-of-vacation, a rest, an escape from the theater," she said today as she made plans to sail on the Queen Mary to see the country of Mary Stuart and visit again the places associated with Victoria in and around London.

"Call it a busman's holiday," she said, "but there it is. Scotland and England—Mary Stuart and Victoria and, of course, the Queen Mary."

Radio Roundup TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

NOW HOW do you like this?—Because Jack Benny's wit hits western dialers about 7:30 o'clock at least two youngsters are going to stop going to church on Sunday evenings!

That is unless Governor Merriam inaugurates daylight savings time. Then they wrote to the governor: "We, the children of the Sacred Heart school, Redlands, Calif., would prefer to have daylight savings time through the month of June."

Especially in the churches where services on Sunday evening usually start about 7:30. Jack Benny starts at 7:30 now as you know, so therefore we would like to have the services start at 6:30 instead of 7:30 or else we will have to stop going to church on Sunday evenings.

"So, if you please, try to change the time."

"Father Forristal told us to write to you."

According to a United Press dispatch, Merriam is said to have replied that he appreciated the situation "because I know how you enjoy Jack Benny's program."

"Perhaps changing the hour of the Sunday evening services would be easier than changing all hours in California, which would require an act of legislation."

Which, he drops the "hot potato" right back in Father Forristal's lap.

FINAL RITES HELD FOR WAYNICK

Scores of friends of Dr. D. D. Waynick, prominent citrus expert who was killed in a traffic accident Saturday, gathered at 10:30 a. m. today at funeral services in the First Presbyterian church at Anaheim to pay their last respects.

At an inquest yesterday afternoon in the Backs, Terry and Campbell chapel, at Anaheim, a coroner's jury returned a verdict that Dr. Waynick's death was accidental. He was killed when the car he was driving east on Katella road was in a collision with a Pacific Electric car at the crossing near Stanton.

The coroner's jury also exonerated the train crew, consisting of Conductor E. G. Griffen and Motorman M. F. Wygal, Los Angeles. A recommendation was made that "additional safety signals be installed to protect this crossing." There is no wig-wag signal at the crossing.

The funeral services were presided over by the Rev. Thomas H. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Anaheim, with Backs, Terry and Campbell as funeral directors. Robert Brown of Santa Ana sang at the services. Burial was in Loma Vista cemetery.

Dr. Waynick is survived by his widow and son, Earl Waynick of Santa Ana; his father, Fred M. Waynick, and a sister, Miss Dana Waynick, both of Anaheim. Having resided in California 20

PRESIDENT CARDENAS' MAILED FIST HALTS MEXICO RAIL STRIKE

WALKOUT OF 48,000 MEN COLLAPSES

Workers Ordered Back to Under Pressure By Government

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, May 19.—A strike of 48,000 employees of the great Mexican National Railways collapsed today under resolute counter-action from President Lazaro Cardenas' administration.

Leaders of the strikers, who walked out at 5 p. m. yesterday, demanding higher wages, ordered the workers back to their posts at noon today after the government declared the strike unjustified and "non-existent."

Mailed Fist Seen

A personal appeal by the president, who cited "unmistakable proofs of my intention to fight for the betterment of the working classes," was believed to have gone a long way toward ending swiftly the short-lived strike movement. The velvet of the president's approach to the crisis failed to conceal entirely the mailed fist behind his action.

Army Help Asked

The government's central conciliation and arbitration board warned the workers if they failed to return within 24 hours, they would lose all rights under present collective labor contracts and the railway management would be free to hire new workers.

A further illustration of the government's firm handling of the problem was given in a war department order to commanders of all military zones to see that the anti-strike decision was enforced. The interior department issued similar instructions to governors of the states.

TWO BURGLAR SUSPECTS CAUGHT

Billfold of One Found At Scene of Crime Lead to Arrest

George Washington Kidd, 18-year-old Garden Grove youth, and Guadalupe Placentia, 19, of 927 East Pine street, Santa Ana, were arrested by Santa Ana police last night and booked at the county jail on charges of burglary. Their arrest followed discovery of a billfold with Placentia's name in it at the scene of a burglary at the home of A. J. Smiley, 1415 North Garvey street.

Mr. Smiley, upon returning home at 10:20 p. m. yesterday, heard a noise in the rear of the house and found a window had been forced open. Numerous personal effects were missing, and police were notified. In searching the vicinity for clues, they found Placentia's billfold.

Officers went to Placentia's home where they arrested him after finding several of the stolen articles on his person and in a garage at the rear of the house. Placentia told officers he had brought the stolen articles from Kidd, whom he said was at the Pacific Electric depot waiting for a Garden Grove-bound car. Kidd was apprehended at the depot, and both were taken to the police station for questioning.

According to police, the pair soon confessed to having entered Mr. Smiley's home. They also assertedly told officers they had burglarized residents in San Bernardino and Riverside counties. Kidd is reported as having told police he recently stole a car in Santa Ana and later one in Los Angeles.

WOMAN, SON INJURED

Mrs. Ethel Alice Newman, Los Angeles, and her seven-year-old son, Harold Newman, were injured at 6 p. m. yesterday, when Mrs. Newman's car collided with a machine driven by Verley E. Conklin, Placentia. The accident occurred as Mr. Conklin backed his car from the curb where it was parked on Placentia road in Atwood.

"Hello," Puffy shouts. "There's no cause for alarm. We're hungry and lost, and we'll do you no harm." Then wide swings the door, and a woman steps out. She's grouchy and old and inclined to be stout.

GOV. LANDON WARNS OF PROPHETS

Presidential Possibility Tells Graduates to 'Have Courage'

ATTICA, Kan., May 19. (P)—Gov. Alf M. Landon's credo for youth, enunciated in a prairie village and heard by a national radio audience, counseled 29 high school graduates today to undertake their responsibilities courageously and to beware of "prophets preaching the doctrine of despair."

The Republican presidential possibility made an unusual appearance in an improvised amphitheater under flood lights and before a crowd of farm folk and neighbors numbering several thousand. Landon explained that he came because he had been asked by an old friend whose son was among those receiving diplomas.

The governor dwelt on "truisms" he termed "part of the gospel of human freedom," and cautioned against "a tendency to overthrow the fundamental truths of life that have been learned from long experience."

Landon emphasized "there is no substitute for courage," and warned "there is still another kind of courage that this generation will have to show. I mean courage in facing the fact that many difficult adjustments will have to be made in the future."

HUNT ON HERE FOR MISSING YOUTHS

Orange county police today were searching for two Los Angeles boys who last Saturday left their homes for Newport Beach, where they were to go fishing. The boys, Don Farris and Leonard Sargood, were driving a gray sedan bearing New Jersey license plates, according to information received by Deputy Sheriff Mel Dean. The pair left their homes in Los Angeles at 5:30 p. m. Saturday, telling relatives they would return Sunday evening. They had not returned to their homes at a late hour last night, and relatives were worried for fear they may have suffered an accident.

'Aerial Policeman' Gets Job Here But Just a Plain One

John Martin was appointed a special aerial police officer to serve without pay at last night's city council meeting—with the aerial part of his appointment deleted.

The deletion occurred in this manner: A motion for the appointment, by Councilman Plummer Bruns, was questioned by Councilman Joseph P. Smith, who said an investigation should be made as to the city's liability if a prisoner or passenger should be injured in the plane while Mr. Martin was serving the city.

Mr. Bruns then withdrew his first motion and substituted one leaving out the word "aerial."

"Is he going to use his plane in this work, or walk?" asked Mr. Smith.

"Joe, the chances are he'll drive a car," rejoined Mr. Bruns.

Then the motion was passed. Mr. Martin became simply a special police officer serving without pay.

But he still owns an airplane.

++ County Landmarks ++

Bolsa Chica and Los Rios Rancho Two Small Land Grants

(In an effort to acquaint residents of Orange county with some of their most-prized historic possessions, The Journal is publishing a series of daily articles on county landmarks. These articles them. Today's article tells about two of the smallest Orange county landmarks.)

Two of the smallest Mexican land grants ever made in Orange county were the Bolsa Chica (Little Pocket) and Rancho Los Rios.

The latter grant was the smallest ever made in California. It was granted in 1845 by Governor Micholorena to Don Santiago Rios and contained 7.09 acres. The grant was located near the Vejar ranch house.

The Bolsa Chica grant contained two leagues and was given to Joaquin Ruiz in 1841. It lies along the coast between Las Bolsas and Los Alamitos and includes the towns of Sunset Beach, Wintersburg and Smetzner.

Rancho Los Coyotes, containing 10 leagues, was granted to Juan Jose Nieto in 1834. Coyote creek, the boundary between Los Angeles and Orange counties, flows through the rancho. The old ranch house was near Northam station on the Santa Fe railroad. The site has been marked by the Mojave chapter of the D. A. R.

Like other old adobe houses, the ranch house had its stories of buried treasure, and treasure hunters contributed to the destruction of the old ruins, it is recalled in the Pleasants history of Orange county.

A report recommending preliminary steps for widening and extending South Flower street to Newport road was approved last night by the city council. In view of future completion of Manchester highway and extension of South Main street to Corona del Mar, careful consideration will be necessary in regard to improving north and south streets, said the report.

In regard to proposed extension of West Fourth street along the Pacific Electric right of way on a curve to intersect with Fifth street, the report said there is no immediate traffic problem there and suggested that the proposal simply be taken under advisement.

Miss Saunby To Tell Girls of Travels

Sights and experiences in India, Paris, and other parts of the world will be described by Miss Dora Saunby in a speech before members of the Lathrop junior high school ninth grade Girl Reserves Thursday afternoon, after classes are dismissed.

Miss Saunby, who recently returned from a jaunt around the world, is planning to bring with her, to display to her audience, Hindu curios and souvenirs of her sojourns in other foreign countries. In contrast with the Thursday afternoon program is the most recent activity of the group—an all-day beach party last Saturday at the Balboa beach home of Jean Dowds, a club member.

In the afternoon, the rapidly-sunbathing girls rowed over to Corona del Mar to get Miss Mary Porter, Girl Reserve adviser who was at that beach with a group of 30 Logan and Fremont school girls, guests of the Tri-Y for the day.

Roberta Nichols, Helen Lowe, Ida Holland, Miss Geraldine Cole, Miss Josephine White and Miss Boyd Josephine, accompanied the Mexican girl groups. Miss Porter returned to Balboa with the Lathrop girls, who were Betty Lacy, Dorothy Sheehan, Jean Dowds, Irene Williams, Mary Corey, Alice Arterburn, Vivian Vail and Miss Isabel McCormac, adviser. Mrs. Mary Lacy and Mrs. C. G. Dowds supervised picnic lunch for the girls.

WENIES SIZZLE FOR JAYSEE PARTY

Uphold the Constitution

AS A RESULT of the important Guffey coal bill decision yesterday, we expect to hear the usual charges that the supreme court is making the laws and running the country.

And, of course, there will be the usual talk from the New Dealers about amending the constitution to "strip the court of its power." And the "nine old men" will be again excoriated for doing their duty.

Now the supreme court doesn't make any laws, and its duties do not include passing judgment on the goodness or badness of any laws. It was not for or against NRA, AAA, the Guffey coal bill or other various New Deal measures which it has found unconstitutional.

We have a constitution, not to give congress power, but to restrict the power of congress. It says what congress cannot do. Under this constitution, any citizen has the right, if he feels a new law extends congressional or executive power too far, to appeal against enforcement.

The court hears the evidence and merely decides if the law in question is within or without the constitution.
The court's position is that if people want the constitution changed, that is their right—but as long as the present constitution is in effect, it should be observed.

We have had our constitution many years; apparently
we are going to keep it for many more. As long as we do, we should not criticize those charged with enforcing it,
simply because their decisions don't happen to jibe with our personal opinions.

Caltech senior was named student body president after passing out 5c cigars to students. That lad has the makings of a senator or governor.

An End to Unemployment

THERE'S more to taking up the unemployment surplus than simply "sharing the work" through a voluntary pact on the part of business and government to cut the working day to six hours, as we suggested yesterday in the editorial headed "An End to Unemployment."

It is necessary to find something worthwhile for Americans to do in the additional leisure time they would get under this plan. Otherwise, there would be too many people looking for part time jobs and forcing the labor adjustment out of line again.

A necessary step, it seems to us, would be formation of a government recreation relief agency, which would take the few remaining jobless persons and put them to work building great recreational and educational centers within easy reach of the masses of people. This would solve the leisure problem. And the cost would be small compared to the present public works program.

Another needed move would be establishment of a government employment bureau to classify the unemployed as to ability and occupation, and to notify them of openings in the greatly expanded private industry. And if an idle adult refused to take a legitimate job in private business, he would automatically be barred from further government help, except perhaps the barest sort of commodity dole.

It seems that unless business and government get together on an acceptable, constitutional plan to put 12,- 000,000 Americans to work—there'll be some unhappy days ahead for democracy.

Republicans say that a big increase in business would help this fall. So would a big increase in Republicans.

Those Meals for Children

FATHERS and mothers who have daily battles with Junior to see that he eats the right things will be pleased to know that Dr. Clifford Sweet of Oakland, speaking before the recent convention of the American Medical Association, declared that a great deal of the so-called modern scientific feeding is just time wasted.

No normal child will resist eating for long, if he is healthy, says Dr. Sweet, and a craving for candy is natural to this period of growth. Also, he says, it is decidedly harmful to a youngster to force him to eat things he doesn't like.

Common sense indicates that he is right. Nature has kept the world going pretty well from generation to generation through the simple process of eating what could be obtained, and what the appetite called for.

It will be a favor to little Mary or Willie if you don't force him or her to eat that last bite of spinach—and it will be a break for yourself, too.

And what, by the way, ever became of Capt.
Anthony Eden?

A Profitable Program

WHAT do eastern visitors like best in California?
Charles Horrworth, field secretary of the All-Year club of Southern California, told local chamber of commerce members yesterday that they prefer the following attractions, in the order named: Climate, beaches, mountains, groves, missions, outdoor sports and movies.

Orange county has the first six of these, it is interesting to note. And, therefore, is equipped to reap a rich return from the vast stream of tourists that pour into the state.

In undertaking to attract more visitors to the county,
the chamber is making a wise investment of time and effort. Orange county must depend for much of its growth upon newcomers from the East. Getting them here as temporary visitors is the first step toward making them permanent residents.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

The amazingly young and equally brash Milton Berle continues to put Broadway in stitches. Received at first with jeers as a smart
alec gag lifter,
he has become
the favorite comedian of that salty strip between Herald Square and Columbus Circle.
In his early 20's, Bronx born,
he has been appearing publicly
only a few years. So juvenile was he in his beginning his mother escoter him to and from the theater and everywhere. And she continues his constant companion on stage and off.

Chic Sale used to do an impersonation of a small town slicker who knows all the answers. And that was Berle. He has the in-grating grin of the cat that just ate the canary and has mastered that popular art of turning the most devastating jokes on himself.
What seems to be irritating
freshness now will likely mellow with years and experience. Many crack comedians expressed it in informative days. George M. Cohan with his nasal twang and humped
over lobe called himself the "Yankee Doodle Boy." Today his art is tinged with shyness.

Lignon Johnson is a one-man title guaranty company and the sole proprietor of one of those odd business ventures that makes a good living. By a complete index system, he can tell in a jiffy the origin, ownership and other facts
about titles for motion pictures,
plays and books and thus veer budding authors and producers away from legal entanglements. And that, as so many have found, is something.

I have wondered about the anonymous genius who perpetrates
the ads for a clothing house in the New York theater programs. His job is a play on play titles. For instance if the opus is called "Summer Wives" he puns: "Some are wives of tall men, others are wives of short men, etc." A job such as that must wear one down after a few seasons. Indeed I'd toss in the sponge after one.

The big musical revue along with intimate little versions as sponsored by Sam Harris and Irving Berlin are believed on their way out. Even Ziegfeld could not compete with the luxury of the film glorifying his name. George White dropped $60,000 on his last venture and Earl Carroll is devoting his talents to floor shows in Miami restaurants and the Dallas exposition. Many things contribute to the debacle, chiefly the talkies and their gobbling outstanding talent and secondly the enormous revues put on by Broadway cafes. The big revues were generally "anged," too, by the Wall Street plungers willing to take a flyer in theatricals after a big killing.

Finley Peter Dunne preferred
the martyrdom of complete isolation in his slow death from a malignant throat malady. When doctors pronounced his doom, he left the devotion of his family for a hotel apartment rather than become what he thought would be a burden. Dunne was one of the richest writers through inheritance
of a friend and companion. "Mr.
Dooley's" philosophy so delighted Payne Whitney he bestowed gifts and a bequest totaling more than $2,000,000. It was the same sort of comradeship that now exists between young Jack Whitney and Robert Benchley.

Dexter Felloows, of the circus,
has joined the autobiographers with "This Way to the Circus." As-side from being the best known press agent in the world, he is far and away the most popular. So popular indeed he does not have to try to make news. When he comes to town—a hundred towns and more yearly—he merely sits in his headquarters smoking a cigar and the reporters flock to him. And never go away without a bang-up yarn.

In one of those quirks of conscience over the theory a daily commentator should behold all facets of life and not be such a stick in the mud, I fared forth
after midnight for one of the haunts in my neighborhood. And occupied a table alone to watch awhile. As usual, I collected the inevitable and wandering drunk,
one of those who must not only pull up close but lean. I tried to be merry and bright but he was especially scornful of my tall orangeade. "At's why you're so skinny" he jeered and snapped for a waiter to bring me an old fashioned. Then dropped over into a mumbling collapse. I finished my soft libation quickly, settled my chit and rose to go. At which the interloper roused and leered "At's
the way with heels. Get you crooked and leave you flat."

CUT JAPANESE TRADE
BELGRADE (AP)—To curtail Japanese imports to Yugoslavia,
the finance ministry has decreed that importers must obtain permission from the national bank for Japanese payments, which will be regulated according to purchases made by that country here.
In 1935 Japan shipped goods
valued at $96,000 to Yugoslavia, but bought only a fraction of that.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Miguel Mariano Gomez, who will be inaugurated President of Cuba tomorrow, had some highly important and confidential conversations with President Roosevelt when he was in Washington.
They may mean drastic changes
in Cuba, and if so, will include:

1. The transfer of the American ambassador, Jefferson Caffery.
 2. The political subjection of Colonel Fulgencio Batista, ex-sergeant, now the iron-handed dictator of Cuba.
- Behind the secret parleys of Gomez and Roosevelt is the fact that the island republic is now more blood-soaked than in the days of tyrant Machado whom Roosevelt took steps to oust.
- Furthermore, the American ambassador is held by many Cubans to be indirectly responsible for Batista's reign of terror.

SUPREME COURT
PROTEST
There are now approximately 1500 political prisoners rotting in Cuban jails—a figure worse than the days of Machado.

In fact so flagrant have become political assassinations that the supreme court, which in Cuba is an extremely weak-kneed institution, recently issued a protest at the way prisoners were made away with while en route to trial.
One case which both the supreme court and the Cuban senate protested was the murder of Augustin Martinez and Octavio Seigle, the latter well known in Washington, where he was in exile
during the Machado days.

Their charred bodies were found in an automobile in a Havana suburb on April 28. They had been mutilated, their fingers torn from each hand, their legs torn from their bodies. Their bodies were thrown into a car and the car ignited. However, the car did not burn, and the bodies were found with mute evidence of medical torture.

BATISTA'S FRIEND
Reason for Roosevelt's concern is that the abject men in the United States get the blame for keeping Batista in power.
Their charred bodies were found
the most hated men in Cuba, now seldom ventures outside the embassy unless preceded by an armed car. There have been several attempts on his life.

He also has a personal bodyguard named Chamis, a big black Cuban negro weighing 200 pounds who once broke a United Fruit company strike by threatening to beat up the first man who would return to work.

One of the ablest men in the career service, Caffery went to Cuba at a time of internal chaos,
and decided to support the one man who seemed capable of imposing law and order. At that time, Batista had shown no terroristic potentialities and seemed to be the man.

Since then Caffery has become so identified with Batista in the Cuban mind that it is tantamount to official American support. In the opinion of Roosevelt's advisors, this implied support has prevented other ablest men in the throwing out Batista, installing a new chief of staff.

For a long time the state department has wanted to transfer Caffery, had no place to send him.
Terrorism in Cuba took second place after Caffery's career. But now, he will be given a long vacation.

During that time, it will be made clear to the Cuban people that President Gomez has official American support in becoming their real ruler and in blotting out terrorism.

SOVIET FLAG
On the day the Red flag of Soviet Russia was flaunted from the flagpole of the supreme court Russian Ambassador Troyanovsky
was dining at the home of Maurice Spelsier in Philadelphia.

Peppered with questions as to who perpetrated the joke, Troyan-ovsky would only answer: "It's very amusing."

Finally, however, he broke down.

"Well, confidentially," he said,
"I think it must have been the Daughters of the American Revolution."

Note—Russian newsmen in Washington cabled no report of the flag incident to the Moscow
press, feared it might be misunderstood, cause serious repercussions.

FRIENDLY ADVICE
Mrs. Roosevelt recently received a letter from a young lady asking for advice on how to "get into politics." The writer explained that she had decided as yet just what office she wanted to run for, but thought that being a U. S. senator would be "nice."

Mrs. Roosevelt answered the letter, said she strongly favored women entering politics, though her young correspondent would have a better chance of success
if she started at the bottom of the ladder instead of the top. Mrs.
Roosevelt then concluded with this bit of advice:

"I would also suggest that before you seek public office you acquire another business or profession on which you can 'fall back' in the event you do not realize your political ambitions.
There is still another advantage in this. Those in public life who have other resources beside their government salary can afford to be more independent."

Later, Mrs. Roosevelt explained to friends that while residing in Albany, N. Y., when her husband was governor of that state, legislators entirely dependent upon their elective jobs for a livelihood were more easily intimidated or tempted by pressure groups
than those who had other means of income.

Remarkable Remarks

The modern woman wants her mate to be strong and dominate her.—Dr. H. A. Rey, Detroit.

The modern criminal, like the modern business man, is a commuter, and he relies on the barriers provided by conflicting and confusing state laws to protect him.—Judge Richard Hartshorne, Newark, N. J.

Just don't make a problem for a child. If you harass him about cleanliness, he will be dirty; if you force him to eat certain foods,
he will be finicky; if you try to show him how to swim out of water, he will sink. Just let him learn.—Dr. Alfred Adler, New York City.

STAYING IN RACE

To the Editor: In connection with my candidacy for election on June 5 to the board of trustees of the San Juan Capistrano Union High school, misinformation is being given out by certain persons that I am withdrawing my candidacy before the date of election.
In order to correct the impression which the dissemination of this misinformation is creating in voters in the district that I have no intention of withdrawing?

What Other Editors Say

COSTS ISSUE BECKONS

(Detroit News)
Reducing government costs offers itself to the Republicans as a simple matter everybody can understand. The simple are the sort of issues the party should draw.
Governor Landon contends. Many G. O. P. leaders favor a plank in the Cleveland platform duplicating the economy plan in the Democratic platform of 1932.

That would pledge a reduction of 25 per cent.

Republican politicians see grand chances for aggressive support of the broken Democratic pledge.
Numerous citations from President Roosevelt's 1932 and 1933 pleadings for economy are seen as excellent Republican ammunition
now, such as the following from his special message to congress on March 19, 1933:

"For three long years the federal government has been on the road toward bankruptcy."
"For the fiscal year 1931 the deficit was $462,000,000."
"For the fiscal year 1932 it was $2,472,000,000."
"For the fiscal year 1933 it
will probably exceed $1,200,000,- 000."

"For the fiscal year 1934,
based on the appropriation bills passed by the last congress and the estimated revenues, the deficit will probably exceed $1,- 000,000,000, unless immediate action is taken."

"Thus we shall have piled up
an accumulated deficit of $5,- 000,000,000."
Banks closed and the depression
at its worst, Mr. Roosevelt for a short time succeeded in making approximately his 25 per cent cut;
yet the costs have risen since under him at such a rate that in this one current fiscal year, the deficit will exceed the total in the four years to which he pointed in 1933.

Though it was under the extreme conditions of 1933, the Roosevelt record shows government costs can be cut. The emergency having passed, they rose fast.

Stated simply and courageously
and sincerely supported, the coming Republican economy pledge
may well become the "paramount issue" of the campaign. It is the one way of offering the people
prospects of lower—instead of higher—taxes.

Is such a thing as a real 25 per cent slash possible? It was done under Roosevelt himself.

CONVERTING REDS

NANKING (AP)—Mental discipline as a cure for Communism is the aim of a new reformatory in this city established to convert men and women who have been "seeing red." Instead of facing firing squads, 50 selected Communists nabbed in recent police raids are undergoing six months'
intensive study of political science, doctrines of the Chinese Nationalist party and history.

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

What This Country Doesn't Need Is a 'Summer Capital'

MOVEMENT is under way to establish a summer capital
on the coast. While the lightning has not struck yet, the favorite spot for its visitation seems to be Santa Barbara. The Channel city is agog over its chance to bask in federal spotlight. Denver has long been angling for a summer White House in that entrancing mile-high city. One may fervently hope that neither of these calamitous possibilities will take form and substance.

What we don't need, in this year
of grace, is any more centralization of federal authority anywhere.
Such "summer capitals" will not break nor weaken increasing federal grip on the people. Washington's long tentacles will merely write their sinuous way athwart
the snow-clad Rockies and on to the western sea. Instead of confining it, in part at least, to the original district where it belongs the expanding federal machine will spew itself whithersoever it listeth.
One summer capital may easily be made the excuse for more such festive places.

Imperial Rome played with this sort of folly and reaped the consequences. Pleasure-maddened em-perors moved with their vast retinues from one "capital" to another.

Skinny Skrabbles

John Steven McGroarty, allured
by a political temptation, has been disillusioned, and is going back to the Green Verdugo hills and his boots and saddle. John is not only tired of politics, but disgusted, and no volume of persuasion or words of flattery can persuade him to change his mind. He will refuse to run if nominated. Mc-Groarty is the poet laureate of California, trained in journalism and literature, and his inclinations
are as far removed from politics
as a hothouse from the north pole.
So, this column some three months ago made the prediction that a Washington residence would not be conducive to his health, or a lullaby to his peaceful temperament. John, are you telling me, or did I tell you?

Three Hollywood stars are on a milk diet so they can put on flesh. If they don't have any better luck than I did they can starve. That system never fails,
but it's rather uncomfortable.

Will some one please inform the more recent residents from the east that we have in this section
a high and a low fog, and while it is going to rain some more, it
"ain't goin' rain no more" this season. I'm willing to make this prophecy risk just to find out if there will be any rain in the month of May.

Won't be long now before school vacation, and the youngsters will want a job. They will want relief for pent up energy. Most of the other kind of relief is given for lack of it.

Halie Selassie has established
headquarters back in the jungle
and put his son-in-law on the throne, where he will stay until some Italian bomb knocks him off.
This bestowal was made by the deposed emperor from his retreat in Jerusalem. It smacks of the affection of the son-in-law. Selassie's son-in-law will probably have the same luck an orange grower does operating a ranch by remote control.

It's too bad there isn't some way for these fellows who commit murder to find their way insane before they commit the crime.

As a health resort Santa Ana
does not claim superior curative powers, but when a citizen can live here 50 years, and then find out that he should change to another location on account of his health
it provokes a smile. So far as I am concerned I hope he lives 50 years more, if he wants to live that long, and most people do.

Business as usual might well be the sign displayed at the beaches
on Sunday's. The Huntington Beach guards saved 11 bathers.
That's a fine record for the guards, but a reckless one for the bathers.

So the incident to be related
may not be interpreted as a business jealousy names are deleted.
Santa Ana merchant attends service club meeting in a neighboring city. On signing the visitor's register, the host of the fine fire competitor. After finishing his signature he picks up the blotter
and tears it into small pieces. The club president is acquainted with the conduct of the visiting member, has the sergeant-at-arms
about the pieces, and then fumes and that's what the fine amounted to. Moral: What you think about your competitor you better
keep to yourself.

An astute politician predicts that congress will adjourn when the government runs out of money.

Invitation to a picnic to play baseball. Declined. Not that I object to baseball, but the invitation comes about fifty years too late. Most of the fellows who are new here and have all sorts of have accepted invitations to play ball will agree with me. It's just another case of the spirit being willing but the flesh is weak.

Lot of folks complaining about the country, but it was all right
when the Creator turned it over to us.

Call for Walt Vandermast,
Simeon High, Max Gowdy,
"Shorty" Hauck, Frank Henderson, The Warner boys, and all former Iowaers. The tall corn crop is slipping in production and skid-dled dizzily during the depression, according to Leslie M. Carl, federal statistician for Iowa. His charts show that 1925 was the last year in which corn sold at $1.10 a bushel. It hit a high of $1.10 in February, but in December of the same year was selling for 56 cents. The minimum price was 12 cents a bushel in January and February 1933. There isn't any music in the waving corn rows at 12 cents. The tall corn is around 63 cents. It would appear to me that at 63 cents Statistician Carl should figure the depression is over. Anyway, it's his job. Most of us former Iowaers are too busy and contented to make the trip back to help change
the corn map.
